

Leadership Voice An Exploration through Theatre and Jazz

Leadership happens when you live into your voice for the benefit of the people and purpose you serve.

You're invited to explore your leadership voice with two master story tellers.

There are lots of descriptions and prescriptions of leadership out there (and we'll work with some our favourites), but the real power of leadership comes when you clarify your own voice and use it to make a positive impact in rapidly shifting circumstances.

That happens in conversations, one conversation after another, and conversations are always improvised in the moment. Even when they are formal and scripted, the tone and feel of the conversation emerges in the moment and shifts with the environment. They are improvised.

So, what can theatre and jazz teach us about using our voice more confidently and effectively? That's what Alisdair Smith and Brian Fraser will explore with you in this workshop.

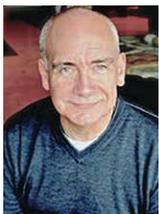

Here are the primary benefits you will reap from this workshop:

- Improve your comfort and confidence in managing the moment
- Connect and collaborate with a stimulating network of improvisers

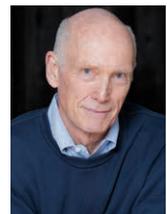

Where
The Sanctuary in Brentwood
1600 Delta Ave, Burnaby, BC

When
Sat, April 18
9:30-4:00

Alisdair Smith is a coach, facilitator, and keynote speaker who supports people in the vital work of changing their minds. He helps you find passion in your work and discover the difference you can make in the world. Find out more at www.alisdairsmith.com.

Brian Fraser is lead provocateur of Jazzthink, where he speaks, facilitates, and coaches leaders to convene SMARTer conversations that generate flourishing communities. Find out more at www.jazzthink.com.

THE COST OF THE WORKSHOP

$69 + GST

Buy Now

$59 + GST for members of CAPS, BCODN, ISPI, and UBC Coaches

Buy Now

$49 + GST
for students

Buy Now

That includes a sandwich lunch and break snacks. Register at alisdair@alisdairsmith.com